software systems contain redundant code that originated from the use of copy and paste while such cloning may be beneficial in the short term as it accelerates development it is frequently despised as a risk to maintainability and quality in the long term code clones are said to cause extra change effort because changes have to be propagated to all copies they are also suspected to cause bugs when the copied code fragments are changed inconsistently these accusations may be plausible but are not based on empirical facts indeed they are prejudice in the recent past science has started the endeavor to find empirical evidence to support the alleged effects of clones in this thesis we analyze the effects of clones from three different perspectives first we investigate whether clones do indeed increase the maintenance effort in real and long lived software systems second we analyze potential reasons for the cases where clones do cause bugs third we take a new perspective to the problem by measuring the effects of clones in a controlled experiment this allows us to gather new insights by observing software developers during their work whereas previous studies were based on historical data with our work we aim to empirically find advice for practitioners how to deal with clones and if necessary to provide an empirical basis for tools that help developers to manage clones jacques derrida explores the ramifications of what we owe to others hospitality reproduces a two year seminar series delivered by jacques derrida at the École des hautes études en sciences sociales in paris between 1995 and 1997 in these lectures derrida asks a series of related questions about responsibility and the foreigner how do we welcome or turn away the foreigner what does the idea of the foreigner reveal about kinship and the state particularly in relation to friendship citizenship migration asylum assimilation and xenophobia central to his project is a rigorous distinction between conventional finite hospitality with its many conditions and the aspirational idea of hospitality as something offered unconditionally to the stranger this volume collects the second year of the seminar which considers an islamic problematic of hospitality the relevance of forgiveness and the work of emmanuel levinas
